GOV. BOYD BARRED OUT

THAYER REFUSES TO VACATE, AND A FIGHT ENSUES.

Eligibilty Given as His Reason-Riotous Times in the State-House.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 9.-The joint session of the Legislature for the purpose of opening, convassing and publishing the returns of the late election was held Wednesday, and for the greater part of the time the wildest anarchy reigned. The Alliance members had a clear majority, but the Democrats and Republicans were not willing to quietly lay down their hands, and a fight was made. The afternoon was spent in wrangling and nothing was accomplished, the Republican and Democratic members being able to keep the Alliance members from bringing the contest cases up in the canvass of the returns.

When the joint convention met Speaker Elder, of the House, insisted that he was the proper presiding officer. Lieutenant-Governor Meiklejohn, presiding officer of the Senate, however, took possession of the speaker's stand and announced that he was the proper presiding officer. This led to much confusion, and a recess was finally taken until morning.

All the doors of the representative hall were closely guarded yes-terday morning, and none but members of the Legislature, State officers and persons having busiwere admitted. The Alliance members had taken possession of the House at 5 o'clock in the morning. They placed the speaker in the chair and put a cordon of assistant sergeants-at-arms around him. Lieutenant-Governor Miekeljohn got in through the cloakroom and was served with an order of ejectment, but he defied the officer and was not taken into custody. Both sides had a force of sergeants at-arms within call, and any attempt on either side to proceed with the canvass would have precipitated a row. To avoid this a committee from each party was sent with a statement of the case to the Supreme Court, and the House waited several hours in suspense for a decision as to which officer had the constitutional right to preside. Fifty sergeants-atarms were appointed and thousands of people besieged the doors. Governor Thayer called out the militia to suppress the disturbance at the State House. The Supreme Court issued a writ of mandamus compelling the speaker to canvass the returns. This is a point in favor of Governor-Elect Boyd.

session adjourned, and Republicans and Democrats filed out of the house. Mr. Elder then called the Alliance members to order and directed the roll to be called. Mr. Elder called the eighteen Senators and fifty-five Representatives of the Alliance to order as joint session, but Attorney-General Leese advised them to submit to the orders of the court. Nevertheless, Elder was declared the presiding officer of the joint session, and the Alliance men started to begin work.

When the Democrats and Republicans attempted to leave the floor the Alliance sergeant-at-arms closed the door and attempted to keep them in. He got a punch in the eye and a bloody nose as the result and the doors were speedily opened and they escaped. Free fights occurred every few minutes. Governor Thayer tried to quiet the crowd, but with no effect. The militia cleared the State House grounds, but the people crowded by them every time they could and a howling mob surrounded the capitol.

The proceedings at the afternoon session were less sensational than those of the morning. The mandamus of the Supreme Court sobered the radical Alliance men and a spirit of moderation was manifested. At 2 p. m. the Independents were in their seats, but transacted no business until the entire body was present and the Lieutenant-Governor appeared and called the convention to order. A number of conciliatory speeches were made, and the Independents, seeing that they could not gain their point by instituting their contest before the canvass of the vote, offered no further obstruction to busi-

The speaker of the House proceeded to open the returns and the Democratic candidate for Governor (Boyd) and the Republican State ticket, with that one exception, were found elected on the face of the returns. A resolution was then passed, receiving the full Alliance vote, declaring that the canvass been conducted under protest and that the Legislature in nowise recognized the election of the officers who had been returned as receiving the highest number of votes. The officers, however, were sworn in promptly by Chief-Justice Cobb. The contest will now go on as prescribed by law. There is a prospect that the Legislature will unseat every one of the Matters were further complicated Thursday night. At 8 o'clock Governorelect Boyd called on Governor Thayer and was informed that the latter would er has barricaded the executive office and remains inside with police and impossible to reach him to ascertain his purposes, but it is understood that he will remain Governor if possible until the Shipping Bill Still Flows in the House -Senate Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—In the House Thursday several motions introduced to limit discussion on the shipping bill posed the measure and Mr. Wheeler (Mich.) favored it. Mr. Grosvenor (O.) said there was a feeling of sentiment in favor of the bill, whereupon Mr. Spinola (N. Y.) brought to the front his measure for the erection of a monument to the victims of the prison ships. A lengthy and somewhat amusing debate followed, but no action was taken.

In the Senate Senator Platt (Cond.) gave notice that he would call up the copyright bill at the earliest possible noment, and Senator Allison (Ia.) said that if the chairman of the committee on agriculture (who was necessarily absent) did not at an early day ask for the consideration of the Conger lard bill he

(Mr. Allison) would himself do so. The following House bills were taken from the calendar and passed: Appropriating $75,000 for a public bullding at Akron, O. (with an amendment); appropriating $100,000 for a public building at Davenport, Ia.

The mnance bill was then taken up and Senator Stewart (Nev.) asked unanimous consent that a vote should be taken on the bill and amendments at 4 o'clock on Saturday. This was objected to, but a proposition by Senator Ingalls (Kan.) that general debate on the bill shall close with the adjournment on Tuesday next, and that on Wednesday debate shall be resumed on the bill and amendments under the ten-minute rule-the final vote to be taken on the passage of the bill before adjournment on Wednesday—was agreed to.

Savages Fighting Among Themselves-Lieutenant Casey's Murder-Sho-

shones in Idaho Don War Pant. LATEST FROM THE FRONT. PINE RIDGE AGENCY, S. D., Jan 9 .-

General Brooke, from his camp on

White Clay creek, writes General Miles that he has been notified that many of the principal men and chiefs now on that ereek will visit General Miles today. It was expected that General Miles would hold a conference with Red Cloud, who came in Thursday morning, but the expectation was not realized. The General had decided that he would hold no more talks with the aged chief, as he had given him the ultimatum several days ago to abandon the hostiles or suffer the consequences. The arrival of the old man is considered

Casey's life by warning him of his Red Cloud told of a fight between the Ogallalas and the Brules shortly after the killing of Casey. The former made an effort to separate from the Brules and return to the agency. The latter objected and fired at them, but no one was injured. Thursday morning about 200 of the Ogallalas succeeded in forsaking the Brules and came into the Buffalo Bill, attended by Buckskin Jack, arrived at noon from Rushville. He was warmly greeted by several hundred Indians who thronged about the sutler's store. He bore a letter from Governor Thayer to General Miles setting forth Colonel Cody's connection with the State militia and assuring the General of the hearty co-operation of the State troops. The latter have extended lines toward Pine Ridge, and mounted men patrol between the several companies so that no Indians may pass through the lines. General Miles heartily approved of the arrangement.

Thursday night it was found that 300 Indians, said to be coming to the agency. re in camp three miles from General Miles' view of the situation in general is about as follows: There are 300 or 400 in the hostile camp who are wicked and are trying every way known to influence the Indians not only to remain out but to fight the matter to the end. On this point they may be mistaken. General Miles hopes that the better element will prevail and to some extent destroy these wicked Brules. On this account he is exercising patience. So long as there is a chance of destroying each other he feels he can afford to wait.

Yankton Charley, now employed as a scout here, brings particulars of the murder of Lieutenant Casey, of the Twenty-second Infantry of General Brooke's command, near the hostile camp Wednesday. The Lieutenant had started out to visit the hostiles in order to induce the chiefs to come in and talk with General Brooke. He passed a small band of Ogallalas, who were butchering, and proceeded further, followed, however, by two of the Indians, who appeared to be friends. He was shortly afterwards met by Pete Richards, sonin-law of Red Cloud, who had been sent by the latter to warn him not to approach the hostiles, as it was dangerous to do so. Casey said he would ride to the top of a little knoll, where he could get a view of the hostile camp. Richards dissuaded him, and he and Casey turned around and departed.

Just then Richards heard a shot, and, turning back, saw Casey fall from his horse, the bullet having passed through fired by the younger of the two Ogallalas who had followed Casey. Richards would have shot the murderer but his cartridges would not fit his gun. Thursday night General Brooke vendetta, which has been quiet for ant Getty to recover the remains. The arrangement is simply the adoption of an idea that has long been in practical use on railway mail trains. Its extension to all transatiantic mail steamers can hardly be anything but a question of time.

Red Cloud showed his good sense in the statement that the wrongs of his people have been disregarded "because the Indians have no newspapers of their own to speak for them." In the Indian Territory the Indians have had newspapers for many years, and have things about as they want them. Red Cloud's philosophy is broad, and reaches back out of historic sight. No people has ever survived comfortably and durably without newspapers, and it will be difficult to find our one that has ever lost its liberties, or anything of much value, with live newspapers watching. Still, the field for newspaper men in the Sioux region is not especially inviting just now.

Has anybody heard a democratic paper howl for the "wiping out of needless state offices" lately? It was less than three months ago that they were telling people daily how the tax-payer's money was being "squandered to support professional politicians." We have anxiously awaited some example of democratic retrenchment, but the avidity with wnich offices have been suspped up since Governor Peck assumed sway, makes it improbable that there will be any office left to fgrnish such an example.

Secretary of State Cunningham has announced that it will take five or elx weeks to get out the Blue Book this year. Two years ago type for the entire Blue Book was re-set and new plates made, but the inference that less time will be occupied this year in the composition is centradicted by the fact that a large amount of census statistics must be incorporated into the book this year.

Treasurer Hunner had been in office ess than forty-eight hours when the first pledge to his constituents was broken, and $400,000 of state cash in his charge had been deposited in Milwaukee banks.

VIEWS OF COVERNORS Messages of The Executives of Illinois and

Michigan, ILLINOIS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 9.—Governor Fifer's message was both houses of the Legislature Thursday. The Governor in his message pays especial attention to the world's fair, reciting how the enterprise of the citizens of Chicago resulted in raising $5,000,000, and adding that by a vote of the people the aggregate subscription was made $10,000,000. He says the people of Illinois can not be less proportionately generous in a matter where the fair fame of the State is involved. He does not stipulate the amount to be appropriated, and has no recommendation to make regarding the authority under which the appropriation shall be expended.

The Governor devoted some attention to ballot reform, urging the adoption of the Australian system of voting. He takes occasion to recognize the strength of the Farmers' Mutual Benes peculative failures, not materially affect fit Association and other agriculting substantial interests. In the House notices were given of contests in the Third, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Twenty-first, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, Thirty-fifth and Thirty-ninth districts.

The House adopted a resolution referring all contest cases to an elections committee of fifteem members, to be appointed by the speaker.

Both houses met in joint session at 2 p. m. for the purpose of canvassing the vote for State officers. After the clerk had announced the result of the count Speaker Crafts declared Edward S. He indorses the local option bill, passed in 1889, and urges the reenactment of the provisions left out in error of the enrolling clerk. In regard to the world's fair, Governor Luce suggests that the Governor be empowered to appoint fair commissioners to look after the State exhibit, and that ample appropriation be made to carry on the work. Governor Luce advises the Legislature that they will be asked to appropriate $50,000 toward the expenses of entertaining the Grand Ry., at Canaloharie, N. Y. Army of the Republic encampment at Detroit next summer. He recommends increase in tuition to students from other States at the State University, and considerable space is devoted to other State institutions.

Governor Winans read his inaugural to the Legislature Thursday. It was by far the most radical message presented by a Michigan Governor in many years. 'Our system of State taxation needs thorough revision for the purpose of equalizing the assessment on the two classes of property -that subject to specific tax and that subject to local taxation. Every industry, busi ness and property interest should bear its just share of the burden of taxation but under our present system the vast amount of property which pays a specific tax pays at least one-half less in proportion to its value than the property subject to direct and local taxation, thus adding to the burden of those least able to pay, and favoring the corporate wealth of our State. Another just cause of complaint is that much property is now exempt from taxation that ought not to escape. There seems to be no good reason why property owned and used by railroad, mining, telegraph and telephone companies, and other associations for private purposes should be exempt from general taxation.

I doubt the policy of exempting any property from equal taxation. The granting of special privileges to any class affords just cause of complaint to the masses.'

PARMERS WIN IN MINNESOTA. St. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 9.—The deadlock in the Minnesota House of Representatives was broken at 3:45 Thursday afternoon on the seventh ballot by the election of E. T. Champlin (Alliance) speaker. The Democrats withdrew their candidate, Mr. Stivers, and voted solidly for Mr. Champlin, the vote standing: Champlin, 72; Searle, 41. The House then adjourned to 10 o'clock to-day to give the Alliance-Democratic combination an opportunity to agree upon the remainder of its slate. P. J Smalley (Dem.), of Caledonia, is to be chosen clerk, and the two parties will alternate on the remaining offices and the committees. NEW GOVERNOR SWORN IN. Boston, Jan. 9.—Governor Russell took the oath of office at 12:30 Thursday. He then proceeded to read his inaugural address. The Governor advocates an amendment to the constitution of the State annulling so much of it as requires the payment of a tax as a qual-

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 9.- The Republican members of both branches of the Legislature held a caucus Wednesday night and unanimously renominated Leland Stanford for United States Senator. The Democrats decided to give the complimentary vote to Stephen M. White.

PERISHED FROM COLD. The Weather on the Continent Is Dissetrous in Its Results. LONDON, Jan. 9.—The weather continues intensely cold throughout the continent. Three unfortunates have been found frozen to death in the streets of Paris, and three children lost in the woods in the department of the Nord perished from the cold. From Hamburg comes the news that the lower Elbe is frozen over solid. Fleets of vessels are detained. Some which were provisioned for short voyages are frozen in and their crews are suffering for want of food. At the mouth of the river over twenty ships, unable to enter, are driven helplessly about by the strong northeast winds among the heavy floating ice. Great loss of life and property is feared. All the North German ports are blocked with ice and navigation is suspended.

London, Jan. 9.—Owing to the severe weather the expulsion of the Jews from their homes in the northern provinces of Russia has been suspended. Many families of those expelled are said to have perished in the snow.

Mr. O'Brien Denies It. Boulogne-sur-Mer, Jan. 9. - Mr. O'Brien requests that a denial be given to the reports that have been circulated to the effect that Mr. Parnell has agreed to retire and that he (O'Brien) is to replace McCarthy as leader of the

"You want to do something for her, don't you, Mabel?"

It was a lovely May morning, and a warm south wind was blowing through the open windows of Capt. Lane's cozy quarters and billowing the dainty curtains of the breakfast room. Down in the westward valley, close under the bluffs, a white mist was creeping upward from the shallows of the stream, and here and there among the furrows of the company gardens, and along the railway embankment, little wisps of fog hovered over the soaking earth. It had rained in torrents during the night, but Nature emerged from her bath glowing | Wisely Lane made no attempt to conin the rays of a sunrise that the officer of the day pronounced simply gorgeous as he turned out for reveille. A man less joyous hearted than Capt.

Lane might have found much to delight him in such a radiant morning. But those sunrises were old stories to this | ship to provide for her during the ineviparticular trooper, and though there was hardly a state or territory west of rejoicing, therefore, that he read one the Missouri in which he had not turned ont with the lark and welcomed in the new born day, he seemed just as keen a him, and then sat watching his face as worshiper of the sun god as in the buoyancy of his boyish days, when, nearly a score of years before, he had first joined the Eleventh cavalry. A very lovely woman was Mrs. Lane, and a very sweet and winning hostess she made when doing the honors of her army home. There were those, to be sure, who could detect a species of nervousness and a vague anxiety in her manner at times, and there were people -there always are, worse luck!-who could not quite forgive her her present happiness, or excuse it in her that after having been wooed and won by and wedded to the Adonis of the regiment some few years before she had again wedded, and this time the most eligible bachelor in the command, not much more than two years after the not untimely taking off of her first husband. "No woman ought to be allowed more than one choice out of a regiment," was the half laughing, half rueful remark of some of the army wives who had sisters | found dissembler asks, though he knows yet unchosen. They thought Mrs. Lane had rather too much good luck, despite the fact, now well and generally known, that her first marriage was a brief story of sudden disenchantment, of woe and wretchedness, of shame and sorrow unspeakable. Except among the women, mire her when Mrs. Lane was alongthe name of her first husband was rarely side." spoken in the Eleventh; but, unworthy though he was, there were not lacking censors of her own sex to point out time and again how impossible it would have been for them, had they lost a husband in the army, ever to think of taking another in the same regiment, especially when it was known that No. 2 had been in love with her before she met the original conqueror of her maiden heart. That these remarks should in various forms come eventually to her ears one can hardly doubt; and that a cloud should at times overspread the tranquil sky of her sweet home life no one who nestles her soft cheek against his bronzed knew Mabel Vincent in her school days and weather beaten jowl, burrows under could fail to understand. He strove earnestly to soothe and comfort her. He redoubled his devoted and thoughtful attentions.

Women at the fort simply raved over the lover like ways of Capt. Lane to his wife, and never tired of pointing out to their respective lords and masters how tender and watchful he was. What charming little presents he was always bringing her! "Where did he get such exquisite violets—such lovely carnations?" "Did you ever see anything sweeter than that locket he gave her last week? It was an anniversary of some kind. She blushed when I asked her, but wouldn't tell what. He's always finding excuses for giving her something," etc. And finally some of his brother Benedicks had come to him with gloomy faces to say that if he didn't "let up on this sort of thing" they would have to quit the regiment and the service; life was getting to be all one invidious comparison between his loveliness as a husband and their own india wealthy manufacturer and of companion to his wife. This she had held for a few years, sorely tried at times, yet never complaining. She had ample opportunity at least to read, to study and to estimate character. Indeed it was her keen perceptions that brought about the final rupture between herself and the wife of her employer, herself a distant connection. It was in the days of an early widowhood that Mrs. Lane found herself so frequently in Miss Marshall's company. During the winter the young widow had spent in the south her mother's health was failing, and be tween the invalid and Miss Marshall phia, and published by special arrangement with them.] there had sprung up a friendship and intimacy for which the daughter at the time could hardly account. him that in the almost endless little tiffs

And so, when from brother Reginald's letter Mrs. Lane read the story of Georgia Marshall's final difference with her employers, no time was lost in demanding that she should come to their army home for what Mabel termed a good long rest. She was determined that Georgia should have just as good a time, just as much attention, just as many devotees as any girl that ever turned the heads of the bachelors of the Eleventh. For the week preceding the young lady's arrival she had been impulsively preparing the young fellows for Georgia's coming and ounding her praises to many a listening ear. Who would not listen to those pretty lips? And therefore there was distinct sense of disappointment among the subalterns when that much lauded damsel stepped from the train at the little station and was rapturously enfolded to Mabel's

Jim Wallace, who was Hearn's especial chum, and "Lazy" Lee declared that the new arrival was plain as a pipe stem, except that her hands and feet were particularly slender and shapely. And Mr. Martin, something of a connoisseur, declared that her eyes were the only redeeming feature of her face. But these gentlemen had seen her only at the station the afternoon of her arrival after a dusty ride; and Hearn himself, being officer of the guard, was not presented until the following day. That evening, however, he was her escort to the little athering at the colonel's, and was far ing the baby for, you brute? from content that she did not second the cordial invitation extended by Capt. and Mrs. Lane to come in and chat a while.

But now, three days after her advent, as she comes down to the pretty breakfast room, drinking in the soft balmy air that floats through the open window, Georgia Marshall's face is by no means plain. Her eyes are deep, dark, full of intelligence and life. Her mouth is said Lane. "It was there I first met large, but her teeth are pearly white and beautifully regular. Indeed, if I weren't disposed to be raises her sweet face to meet the warm good morning kiss. The captain lays down the letter he is conning over and the perplexed expression vanishes as he cordially greets her:

"Well, and how did the heroine of Fort Ryan rest last night?" For every one, it seems, is talking of her pluck and promptitude of the oddity of the thing that she, a new arrival, should have been the only one to hear the brief colloquy between that unknown ruffian and the corporal of the guard, that she should have been the first to reach and succor the still sense-
